Nina Korhonen

Leave, leave everything to a country of which we know that the printed images. Anna made ??this choice . It is neither adventurous nor journalist, just unexpected model photographer Nina Korhonen . This 80 year old woman , photographed in all its activities, intimate , funny, and littered with a nod to life, it seems to cross with distance and indifference .

The picture drawn here is the grandmother of the collective unconscious , which prepares us affectionately jams, we slyly slipping a few nuts in the bottom of the bag , or one that still wakes us up in the morning for us curious to know the feeling of walking barefoot in the cool dew. Captured with respect and affection , the images of this grandmother clash with what the visitor is accustomed to seeing . They interfere in the domestic U.S. that has built this Finnish woman who decided one morning in 1959, leaving behind her husband and daughter to go to the conquest of the eastern United States . The moments are juxtaposed , playing loneliness , discovery , and a weary time . Anna – who is none other than the real grandmother photographer Nina Korhonen – likes to set a goal as to ignore the sigh of a nap.
